for New Place on Main Street.
Hearing Continued This Afternoon.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, April 3.—The annual license court hearings were held this morning before Judges Umbel and Van Swearingen. Before the cases were taken up the court announced that all alleged communications regarding license matters had been placed on the files while the anonymous letters were, as in the past, ignored. The court also stated that old applicants, against whom no remonstrances had been filed, need not be taken up. There were four withdrawals. Ferdinand Dippelhorst withdrew as an applicant for license at the Elms Hotel at Connellville, the application of Otto Hines, administrator, remaining on file. Hines, through his attorney, stated that the affairs of the estate have not been closed up but as soon as the license is granted negotiations will be made for sale, several parties being desirous of purchasing the property.

Mary O'Hara withdrew her application for the Baltimore House, Connellville, in favor of Martin O'Hara. The application of John Tate and Edward Yanger for license at Edenburg was withdrawn. Mike Hines withdrew his application for the Elms Hotel at Newell, having formed a partnership with William Smith, Hines and Smith applying.

The first applicant argued was that of John W. Grubbs for the Johnsons house at Brownsville. Grubbs' attorney stated arrangements have been made for $10,000 improvements on the hotel and it is said to be in the best condition. License was refused but he may get it later because it was in bad shape.

Attorney John S. Christy presented the application of James S. Marlette for the St. James Hotel, Connellville. Christy stated that the affairs of the applicant and said the affairs of the property were under liquidation of the property. The hotel is to have 100 rooms.

Attorney John Dugan, Jr. argued for Wesley Mills, who wants a license for a hotel on the West Side. Dugan stated that the property is in the best condition and that the applicant is a respectable man. The court refused to grant the license, stating that the property is in bad shape and that the applicant is not a respectable man.

Attorney John S. Christy presented the application of James S. Marlette for the St. James Hotel, Connellville. Christy stated that the affairs of the applicant and said the affairs of the property were under liquidation of the property. The hotel is to have 100 rooms.

THE BILL OF SHERIFF JOHNS

Is Still Being Held Up by the County Controller—Figures Given for Some of the Errors It Is Alleged to Contain.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, April 3.—An additional statement was issued this morning from the County Controller's office regarding the bill of Sheriff P. A. Johns which has been held up pending an investigation. It was said that the Sheriff reported $10,000 who resigned from office. Sheriff Johns, William Huxley, Mike Pomeroy, John Huxley, Nathaniel Jones and Charles Miller, yet the county is charged 50 cents each for the release of these men. The bill is also criticized because prisoners failed and the same day taken before a judge for a hearing and then returned to jail, and charged two days longer. The county is charged for 73 days' board on cases of this kind.

Bills for 73 days' board in February were charged against Henry Lamborg, Steve Natulio, John Smith and Romeo Zarlin. In regard to tramps, an agreement was made between the Sheriff and the County Controller that under the terms they were to be boarded for 50 cents a day. They were to work at the county house and get their dinners there. Sheriff Johns, it is claimed in the Controller's office charged the Commissioners 50 cents a day and also charged the county 50 cents a day for the same men. A total of 30 cents a day, although the men got one meal at the county house. In all it is claimed 161 days were charged in this manner.

In regard to the bill for the County Detectors, it was stated in the Controller's office that under the terms District Attorney Jefferson, Partridge, Crow, Jones and Huxley, there was one hundred and thirty days' board for County Detectors. Under District Attorney Henderson are one hundred and twenty days' board for County Detectors. The bill for District Attorney Henderson is $1,200 a year. Comparisons show that District Attorney Henderson, in 1908 and 1909, disposed of 2,511 prisoners, while District Attorney Henderson, with an additional County Detectors and an official stenographer, in 1910 and 1911 disposed of 2,907 prisoners, only 12 more than did Henderson, and during his term of office Mr. Henderson has not secured a single degree murder verdict while other District Attorneys secured several.

CARS RUN EACH HOUR

Extension Will Now Be Made to Vance's Mills and Probably Beyond That Point During the Coming Summer Months.

Traffic was inaugurated this morning on the new extension of the West Penn from Juniata to Elm Grove. Business was light because of the unfavorable weather and no difficulty was experienced in making schedule time. The fare to Elm Grove is 15 cents. The new extension, while only a mile or so in length, opens to Connellville's merchants a territory which heretofore has been more or less inaccessible because of the inadequate transportation facilities.

The extension of the Leisner line has been authorized as far as Phillips works, a distance of 12 miles from Connellville and within two miles of Connellville. Whether the road will be built beyond Vance's Mill, some thing more than 10 miles from here, during the summer remains to be seen. If good progress is made on the extension to Vance's Mill it is probable the other extension will be started in time for completion next fall. As yet no contract for the extension to Vance's Mill has not been awarded.

The authorization for construction as far as Phillips brings the new line to Uniontown within two miles of that point. When the remaining link in the loop will be constructed cannot be determined because of rights of way difficulties encountered. The West Penn officials decline to pay excessive prices for rights of way and because one or two property owners refuse to come to terms this work is held up indefinitely.

On Cleaning the Sink

No place in the home gathers grease as quickly as the kitchen sink. Gold Dust washing powder, however, has the peculiar quality of dissolving and cutting grease and if after each dish-washing a soda is made in the sink pan with warm water and Gold Dust and the sink thoroughly rinsed with these sodas, the last particle of dirt and grease will be removed. The sink pipe will never become clogged with grease if Gold Dust and plenty of hot water are used for washing the sink morning and evening.

Firemen Fighting Flames Which Wrecked the $27,000,000 Capitol of New York State at Albany.

ALBANY, April 2.—The damage to the fire may reach $10,000,000. The west and north wings are total losses, while great damage has been done to every part of the great structure. The state library, which was totally destroyed, contained many priceless relics. The assembly and senate libraries, with all their valuable documents, also are gone. The burned building was twice as costly as the national capital at Washington, $27,000,000 having been spent on it. It was 200 feet north and south by 40 feet east and west and covered three acres. The first stone was laid in 1809, and the building was formally occupied in 1870.

Fight Pictures at Lyric Theatre

At the Lyric theatre tomorrow and Wednesday, afternoon and night performances Martin Julian, the fight promoter and former manager of Bob Fitzsimmons, will present the only genuine moving pictures of the Battling Nelson, Owen Moran fight, taken at the ringside in San Francisco, November 25. This terrific strife between the bulldog and greyhound, the struggle between the tiger and panther was the last battle of importance fought out on the Coast and it was a fight never to be forgotten.

The pictures are positively the best ever taken, not only of a pugilistic event but of any other subject. They are bright, clear and distinct. Every movement and blow of the entire fight from beginning to end, can be plainly seen without the slightest strain on the eyes. You see it all from the training quarters, both Nelson and Moran until the final knockout blows were struck in the eleventh round.

You see the combatants shaping up and eyeing each other across the clean, untrampled ring. You see them as they advance for the instructions of the referee and you see them rushing madly forward for the battle.

You see how Nelson, swinging high, aimed and landed the first first blow of the fight upon Moran's nose, and then you see them settle to the grim work ahead.

But enough said, go and see the pictures yourself and hear Mr. Julian lecture on them and describe this and that interesting feature. It will be a treat for you and you will enjoy every second of it. Continuous shows of the pictures will be given afternoon and evening from two to five and again from eleven o'clock. There will be no stops or long waits because one show will follow the other in quick order. The prices of admission have been fixed at 10 cents for adults and five cents for children afternoon and evening.

Class Week at the Y. M. C. A.

This week is class demonstration week at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Therefore the exhibitions have been held in the theatre and each class has been able to have only one or two numbers on the program. Parents and friends are anxious to see the regular work done by the various classes rather than a few stunts by the stars of each class. For this reason the exhibition is held in the Y. M. C. A. gym this year and regular work of each class will be shown.

Tonight the Midget and Junior classes will have the whole evening beginning at 8 o'clock. Tuesday the Employed Boys and the Intermediate; Wednesday, after Prayer meeting, at 8:15 the Senior class will have the floor. Thursday night the basketball team will have a volley ball tournament. Friday night will be vacant on account of the High school contest. Saturday will close the week with a basketball game between the intermediates of the Y. M. C. A., who have not been defeated this year, and a team from Uniontown.

The demonstration this evening will consist of marching, calisthenics, apparatus work, gymnastic games and basketball. Each night the models for the All Round Gymnastic contest of the season will be given to the first, second and third highest grade in each class.

After this week the regular class routine will be discontinued. This does not mean, however, that the gym will be closed. The classes will have their regular hours for the free use of the floor.

THE PROTEST OF THE CONNELLSVILLE OPERATORS.

It is gratifying to note that the esteemed Uniontown Herald agrees with The Courier in the opinion that the Connelville mine operators should not be vexed with needless and trivial requirements for the reason that every proper precaution and every modern device is always promptly adopted and put into practice by the enterprising operators of the coke region. This is particularly so of safety devices with which the mining code almost exclusively deals. Concerning these The Herald says:

It should be remembered that the employment of safety devices and the adoption of salutary mine regulations have never been matters of compulsion with the mining men of the coke region. As long as they have been matters of compulsion. The Erie coke company, for instance, not only lives up to the letter of the law in every particular, but in a number of instances goes the statutes several points better with a system of regulations which are several of the larger independent companies approximate the Erie coke company in the adoption of similar regulations. It is not the law that impels this extraordinary care for the life and limb of the miner; it is the dictate of humanity and the disposition of the coke producers to anticipate every danger and provide against it should it credit instead of dross legislation.

The Herald further notes that a delegation of Connelville operators will go to Erie to appear before the proper legislative committees to protest against certain portions of the proposed new mining code and makes this rather remarkable observation, "The idea of representatives of the Connelville coke region calling upon scheming politicians for justice to themselves and their industry when they could demand it for themselves." It is rather difficult to understand just what The Herald means by this language. In spite of the belittled character of its purg English, the thought is somewhat involved. There is nothing in law or custom, so far as we know, which prevents the Connelville operators from "demanding" when they are "calling." In fact, it has been their habit to demand. They met similar conditions two years ago, and they demanded so strongly that the committee literally threw Chief Roderick and his then proposed bill out of court.

A woman writes Sentiment with the same capital letters as a man does Money. The new County Controller seems to be somewhat on the job. The Indian Head Millers think the mining of a work to Connelville, and if the distance is fourteen miles. Some good people get some joy out of their legs than other people get out of automobiles and they live longer, too. The Red Hand was about again in the mining region yesterday. Western Maryland officials seem to have the habit of climbing higher. The State Constabulary has been strengthened in Westmoreland county, and not without reason. April Fool and some fool newspapers were abroad on Saturday. The Uniontown Herald has managed to get rid of that "McGowan" "reflex" fund, but it seems to have been hard work. Connelville is improving her business houses in anticipation of improved business. There is a reason to think some of the expenditures of officials set down as being unfriendly with the political faction with which Commissioner Langley is identified. In this war between the factions, the public has no part save to see that justice is done. The people will not as the jury. If they believe any of the charges are true they will undoubtedly call the guilty once to account if he no other place, then at the polls. But the public will not judge hastily or rashly. There is plenty of time to arrive at the facts. We will give them all careful consideration. No man will be condemned out of hand nor we hope unjustly judged. Speaking for itself alone, The Courier is free to state that it is waiting for all the evidence before passing judgment. Neither will it do the thing when the same is properly joined.

THE COUNTY CONTROLLER AND OTHERS.

The County Controller of Fayette county seems to have stirred things up considerably in the short time which he has held his office. The investigations of the County Auditors, upon the insistence of the political organ of a faction, were confined to the County Commissioners, and particularly and personally to Commissioner Langley. The Controller seems to have branched out in other lines and to have called into question some of the expenditures of officials set down as being unfriendly with the political faction with which Commissioner Langley is identified.

In this war between the factions, the public has no part save to see that justice is done. The people will not as the jury. If they believe any of the charges are true they will undoubtedly call the guilty once to account if he no other place, then at the polls. But the public will not judge hastily or rashly. There is plenty of time to arrive at the facts. We will give them all careful consideration. No man will be condemned out of hand nor we hope unjustly judged. Speaking for itself alone, The Courier is free to state that it is waiting for all the evidence before passing judgment. Neither will it do the thing when the same is properly joined.

THE THREATENED FIRE BOSS STRIKE.

The threatened strike of the fire bosses of the Monongahela valley raises a rather interesting question. The position of the mine boss and the fire boss is only possible of attainment after the State authorities have set the seal of their approval on the applicant for the position. In a sense he is a State agent. The State requires his presence in the mines, prescribes his duties and certifies his competency. But the State requires the operator to pay his salary, and when he thinks it is not enough, or that he can get more, he threatens to strike, to close down the mines and to throw thousands of men out of employment. There ought to be some better way of adjusting such a threatened difficulty and perhaps that may be found in the State assuming the full and final measure of the internal responsibility, and making every mine and fire boss a State official, in the service of the State, as paid by the State.

Taft (in the new water)—Now, I hope you won't keep us waiting all summer before we get this reciprocity dinner.

PENNSYLVANIA AT WASHINGTON.

Pennsylvania cannot get a Presidential nomination because the State is not doubtful enough. If it were smaller in size and less doubtful, it might have had a President long ago.

However, if we can't have President, we can and do send "reflex" men to represent us in the Congress and the Cabinet. No greater statesman than Philander Chase Knox has graced Presidential Cabinets in fifty years and in the coming Senate Senator Boies Penrose will have the prestige of Republican leadership. Upon his shoulders will largely rest the grave responsibility of defeating the desperate Democratic attempts at tariff tinkering with their attendant business unrest.

Pennsylvania is fortunate in having in that position one who has made good as a Statesman in spite of the insistence of his political enemies that he is merely a boss. It is often difficult to draw a distinction between the one and the other, for the reason that the successful statesman is usually a successful leader. He is the survival of the fittest.

Uncle Banks Holland of Washington county wants to make the local manufacturers and dealers responsible for the suppression of illicit traffic by requiring them to sell only to licensed dealers. The object is a worthy one, but there would be many difficulties in the way. The demand for liquor is so great that private citizens should have just as much right to buy for their own use as any dealer.

A woman writes Sentiment with the same capital letters as a man does Money.

The new County Controller seems to be somewhat on the job.

The Indian Head Millers think the mining of a work to Connelville, and if the distance is fourteen miles. Some good people get some joy out of their legs than other people get out of automobiles and they live longer, too.

The Red Hand was about again in the mining region yesterday.

Western Maryland officials seem to have the habit of climbing higher.

The State Constabulary has been strengthened in Westmoreland county, and not without reason.

April Fool and some fool newspapers were abroad on Saturday.

The Uniontown Herald has managed to get rid of that "McGowan" "reflex" fund, but it seems to have been hard work.

Connelville is improving her business houses in anticipation of improved business. There is a reason to think some of the expenditures of officials set down as being unfriendly with the political faction with which Commissioner Langley is identified.

In this war between the factions, the public has no part save to see that justice is done. The people will not as the jury. If they believe any of the charges are true they will undoubtedly call the guilty once to account if he no other place, then at the polls. But the public will not judge hastily or rashly. There is plenty of time to arrive at the facts. We will give them all careful consideration. No man will be condemned out of hand nor we hope unjustly judged. Speaking for itself alone, The Courier is free to state that it is waiting for all the evidence before passing judgment. Neither will it do the thing when the same is properly joined.

It's interesting when you Win and Gambling when you Lose.

New York's new Senator's name is McGowan, and if he never heard the name of McGowan it is safe to say his daddy did.

Pittsburg is to be Lexowed and then placed under Government supervision. The political experiences of Pittsburg have been simply ripping.

The more a man works late at his office at night the oftener it would be easy to find him at the Theatre.

The Democrats Are All Ready For the Opening of Congress.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—With the opening of the extra session called to act on the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada but one day away senators and representatives from near and far arrived in Washington today by every train. Baggage trucks, overloaded with trunks, proclaimed to the people of the streets that law making is about to be resumed. The boarding-house keepers and the restaurant proprietors again have put on smiles, for they are promised good business during a good part of the summer.

As this will be an altogether new Congress, the sixty-second, a complete reorganization will be necessary. The swearing in of members and other work of similar character probably will occupy the whole of the first day. Wednesday is likely to be devoted in both houses to reading of President Taft's message, which, according to common belief, will be confined to two subjects—Canadian reciprocity and the tariff commission. After that the lawmakers should be able to get down to business immediately, providing the Democratic plans for the organization of the house go through as smoothly as the party leaders anticipate.

Apart from the importance of the prospective legislation the session promises to be a very important one, principally by reason of the fact that the Democrats are to be the ruling power in the House after 10 continuous years of control of that body by the Republican party. The dynasty of Reed, Henderson and Cannon has passed and the scepter now passes to untied hands. New rules of procedure, the result of revolution in the last Congress, are to be tried out and the question of the movement is whether arbitrary power in legislation is to be curtailed still further.

The new Congress contains 111 new members—10 Senators and 122 Representatives. The proportion of the two parties in both houses has undergone great changes. In the Sixty-first Congress the Senate was composed of fifty-nine Republicans and 31 Democrats, the House of 219 Republicans and 172 Democrats. In the House this majority is completely reversed. The Democrats now number 227, the Republicans 103, while there is one representative of the Social Democratic party. In the Senate the change was less sweeping, but even there the Democrats have gained nine members so that they now number 42 and the Republicans 60.

The changes in the membership of the Senate are the greatest that have taken place at any time since succeeding Southern States sent new Senators immediately after the close of the Civil War. The extra session will

FIRST EMBALMER IN SCOTSDALE.

Samuel D. Aultman Who Died Sunday Was an Early Undertaker.

BELONGED TO AN OLD FAMILY

A Native of East Huntingdon Township, He Settled in Scottdale in His Beginning and Was For Many Years a Prominent Business Man.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, April 3.—Samuel D. Aultman died at his home on Chestnut street Sunday morning, after a long illness, following upon an accident which caused the loss of an arm. The deceased was one of the earliest residents of this community, was one of the town's first undertakers, and introduced the art of embalming here. Besides his wife and daughter there are living of the immediate family, two brothers and three sisters. The brothers are Daniel S. Aultman, a well known civil engineer with the U. S. Frick Coke Company of Scottdale and C. D. Aultman of Greensburg. The sisters are Mrs. J. B. Mumaw of Oneka, Kansas; Mrs. Frank Petts of near Scottdale, and Mrs. Rebecca Saunders of Greensburg.

The funeral services will take place from the late residence of the deceased at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. W. H. Givver, pastor of the Alverton Church of God, of which the deceased was a member. The burial in the Scottdale cemetery will be private.

Samuel D. Aultman, who was for years one of the earliest furniture dealers and undertakers of this locality, was a son of Jacob and Rebecca (Dobler) Aultman and was born in East Huntingdon township, Westmoreland county, April 15, 1815. Jacob Aultman was a farmer and a man of many talents, a staunch Republican, and who served for several terms as township road supervisor. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran church and died at the age of 86.

Samuel D. Aultman grew to manhood in his native township, was trained as a farmer and secured his education in the common schools. Afterward he learned carpentry and followed this trade for 14 years. Later he entered the furniture and undertaking business at 120 Pittsburg street, Scottdale, and introduced the art of embalming in Scottdale, while his house was one of the handiest in the county.

He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, Improved Order of Hebeophs and the Grand Army of the Republic, and of the Church of God of Alverton. For several years he was secretary of the Scottdale Building & Loan Association and was a member of the Westmoreland and Fayette Natural Gas Company in the early days of this natural gas industry. During this time he was interested in the town's development and in politics was a Republican. Of late years he was employed as a pattern maker, and on February 27, 1909, while at work in the pattern shop of the U. S. East Iron Pipe & Foundry Company at Scottdale, was caught in a planer and lost his left arm. Although he recovered and was out, he began to fall noticeably from that time, and for the past several months had been confined to his home.

In 1869 he was united in marriage with Maria Stoner, a daughter of Joseph Stoner, a well known farmer of East Huntingdon township. Two children were born to the union, Luella and Etta May. The former died in 1886 at the age of 17. The latter is the wife of C. E. Stoner, a well known young man of Scottdale.

Brebner

Did O'Ryan grasp my hand more firmly than was necessary? I might have spent the night wondering, but when they had gone I broke down for the first time during my imprisonment. I shed tears of impotent rage, pacing my cell frantically, cursing and beating its stone walls like a madman. It was horrible to know that Daria would be laid on that hideous couch to have her fair limbs broken; that her death, henceforth, might be as sure as I believed it would be, should be witnessed by such loathsome wretches as the men who had just left me and perhaps only by them. Only when I was thoroughly exhausted did I throw myself on my rug and fall asleep to dream—what dream? It was of pleasant fields and sunshine.

I awoke refreshed. Perhaps the very dream I have called at gave my sleep its power to refresh me. My first thought was of Daria, my second of O'Ryan. Had he pressed my hand last night with some meaning? Surely it was impossible, seeing how he had helped to rule me, but a man in dire necessity sees hope in anything.

It was not until the afternoon that I had any visitors that day. I had begun to hope that I was going to be left alone altogether when Costa came in and bound me as usual. As I was a prisoner in the fortress.

"I said wearily, 'An old friend this time,' said a merry voice in answer, and Lady Aldred entered, followed by two or three men. It was easy to see that they were her attendants as surely as I was a prisoner in the fortress.

"This was an old lover of mine, gentlemen," she said merrily. "He was foolish enough not to value my friendship. Behold the result!"

She was a pretty picture, much as I hated her; I could not deny that she had evidently played into the hands of the executioner if he but kills you slowly enough."

"Do all men who dispense you come to this?" asked another of her cavaliers.

"I am not so unmerciful. Sir Verrill and I are old friends, or enemies—which is it?" and she turned to me.

"Enemies," I answered shortly. "You and you are in my power."

"That does not trouble me."

"You have yet to learn the terrors this fortress holds. You shall have a slow turn of the lever draws that body of yours into agony. For all your headstrong, the walls, solid though they be, will hardly drown your cries, and if you have sense left to hear anything you shall hear my laugh."

"I shall be glad of a spectator," I answered. "It gives a man courage."

"You shall not profit by my coming. I will pour all my power into the hands of the executioner if he but kills you slowly enough."

I could laugh at this threat since the executioners were my friends.

"Count Vaska would be king in Yadda-erna, yet with all your beauty he would not make you queen but his enemy of an accomplice."

"Is it not time we were going, Lady Aldred? Our horses will be getting restive," said one of her companions.

"Besides, the man is a prisoner. Why not leave him in peace?"

"You can go if you will. I have no need of you," she said angrily.

He bowed low to her and left the dungeon.

"Your friends are even now finding you out," I sneered.

"She changed her tone."

"You make me angry, Sir Verrill. I came on an errand of mercy. It may not yet be too late. I have the ear of the king. Why not ask me to plead to him for you?"

"I have never yet asked quarter from an enemy."

"For Princess Daria, then? Will you not plead for her?"

"Not to you."

"Her limbs, like mine, are young, perhaps beautiful. Being slowly broken upon a rack is and use to put them to."

"It is possible that Count Vaska has already pleaded for her," I answered.

"If she would marry him he would use his best endeavors, I warrant you. He is so faithful a friend that he is capable of pleading for her life and for your death."

"I am not a help you. You persist in making me angry, and angry I am dangerous."

"Woman, you are always dangerous to those who trust you," I said hotly.

"Be wary, gentleman; a viper is a pet not to be caressed lightly. I know this woman."

"Not yet. You will not plead for your prisoner, and you are wise, perhaps, for I hate her as I hate you. In a few hours you shall have your desire—you shall embrace her, but you shall have no tongue to tell her of your love. You shall lie together in the vast, underground this fortress, and I shall laugh every time I think of you. You know me! I tell you, you have much to learn. It is time I began to teach you, like this and that."

She laid her riding whip sharply across my face twice as she spoke. My arms were bent behind me. I could do nothing to protect myself.

"You devil!" I howled, springing to my feet.

"CAN I TRUST YOU?"

Costa had heard my howl and entered the dungeon as I broke my bonds. I struck at the woman, and the man received the blow, staggering back across the dungeon to the opposite wall. I heard the woman cry out in terror, but before I could strike again Costa and the guard had seized me. They could hardly hold me. Still, I am glad they succeeded. For I should have killed her had I been able to reach her.

"For heaven's sake, go!" cried Costa. The woman needed no second bidding. She fled from the dungeon, her face as white as that of a corpse. She did not laugh now. This time it was I who laughed—laughed like a madman.

CHAPTER XXIII.

NOT until the dungeon door was shut did Costa and his men release me.

"I almost wish you had come a moment too late," Costa said. "I should have killed her!"

"I believe you would."

"I was a fool not to do it, the night she attempted to plunge a dagger into me."

"You were," he answered.

He evidently had no doubt what he himself would have done under similar circumstances. He bowed low to her and left the dungeon.

Fortunately the blows had missed my eyes, on one side by less than a quarter of an inch. If she struck a little higher I had not lived to write this history. I should have perished miserably on the rack. For before me I had work which required keen sight, although I did not know it just then.

As it was, the blows had struck deep, laying one cheek open to the bone. I carry the mark to this day, an angry flame across my face. I am never likely to forget the woman who put it there. Under Costa's care, however, the wound healed rapidly. It was but a superficial injury, which did not hinder me in any way.

"You were," he answered.

"I am sorry."

"My dear fellow, you are a fool. You are splendid courage, but you are deficient in cunning. Listen to me. The night you escaped from Yadda-erna I helped you, though you didn't know it. I led a howling mob after you, it's true, but I led them around every wrong corner I could. When you were hard pressed upon the stairs I rushed straight at you. It would not have been good for me if you had escaped, while I was in whole body, so I told you to wound. A less wound than you inflicted would have served, but I let it pass."

"I am sorry."

"It turns out for the best. I was left in the city, and since you have been a prisoner, I have been able to help you. You are not allowed to come near you much, lest I should do you an injury."

"You could have given me some sign."

"With that fat Spaniard looking? Only in the last few days has he ceased to distrust me. Here's a rope. Feel it? Good. I'll put it on the couch, and here's the key that opens the door to the corner. Take it. The rope is a good fifty feet long."

"Only fifty?" I exclaimed.

"When you have opened the slab," he went on, "you will feel a ring in the side of the chute. Fasten the rope securely to it and let the rope hang down."

"But fifty feet—what is the good of fifty feet of rope?"

"Below this dungeon is that of the princess. With fifty feet of rope you can reach it."

"O'Ryan!" I exclaimed.

"It is not easy, but you're athletic enough," he went on. "The slab from this dungeon is only a few feet long. It then joins the main shaft that falls into the river—not quite perpendicularly, but nearly. You must let yourself down by the rope until you come to another slab resembling this, but much longer, for the princess's dungeon, though below this is not immediately under it. You will find it a difficult climb up, but on your hands and knees you can do it. Are you clear so far?"

"Yes, but will the slab in her cell be unlocked?"

"It will be wide open."

"She knows that I am coming?"

"No. There is the weak spot in my plan. I have tried to communicate with her but I have failed. In her excitement, she may betray you before you are prepared."

"Prepared for what?"

He paused.

"Will?"

"If this woman or Count Vaska or some other special enemy is there they may say that the executioners bungled at their work and demand that others shall deal with you. There would be no time to make friends with them."

"So long as she dies quickly I care not."

"You are a brave man. I trust all may go well with you."

He held out his hand. I shook it and thanked him for all he had done. He had indeed been a gentle jailer.

Then O'Ryan held out his hand. I took it for the sake of the past.

"There is a long night before you," said Costa. "Shall I stay with you for a while, or would you sooner be alone?"

At that moment O'Ryan grasped my hand sharply. There was no doubt about it this time. What did he mean?

"I would be alone," I said.

Costa bowed ceremoniously as he left the dungeon, and O'Ryan as he followed him turned for an instant and smiled. I was expected to understand something by the pressure, and by his smile. I imagined I had made the right answer to Costa's question.

"But, after all, what could the 'Idiot' man do for me, even if he really wished to help me at this late hour? A sudden fear took possession of me, which made my limbs shake as though the palsy were in them. For an hour it may have been more—fear shook me. My enemies would have rejoiced could they have spied upon me during that time. Then my will-power returned to steady me, and I paced my dungeon until I was sensible of no quarter in the firmness of my steps. Certain that the attack was over, I lay down on my couch, hoping to sleep.

I did sleep, how long I cannot tell, but a touch suddenly awoke me.

"Hush!" said a voice in my ear. "The dungeon was pitch dark. I could see no one."

"Who is it?"

"Dignity O'Ryan. I haven't time to answer many questions. Listen to me. It's your only chance, and it's a poor one, but it is my best service."

"Can I trust you?"

"Trust me, begonia. I haven't been working night and day to help you? Hadn't I got to impress everybody with my hatred of you to make certain that I should be allowed to remain in the fortress? One look of pity, one false move on my part, and I should not have been able to help tonight."

"You deceived me," I said.

"You should have known me better."

"I may be a fool, but you must forgive me if I am a little skeptical now."

"My dear fellow, you are a fool. You are splendid courage, but you are deficient in cunning. Listen to me. The night you escaped from Yadda-erna I helped you, though you didn't know it. ## TUBERS TAKE THE OPENING CONTEST.

Defeat De Neri 33 to 22 in Philadelphia Saturday Night.

HAVE A PATCHED UP TEAM

Sears is injured and O'Donnell could not play. Fogarty filling in for the Central League Champions—Second Half Close.

Special to The Courier.
PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—McKeeseport landed the first game of the interleague series from De Neri Saturday night, at the American A. C. by the score of 33 to 22.

It was sort of a patched team that met the Eastern League champions, for Joe Fogarty of Johnstown, who has played on every team in the United States, from a star team to a champion five, was in McKeeseport's lineup. It was an unfortunate accident that happened to Captain Andy Sears, the much talked of foul shooter of the Central League, that caused an outside man to be in the Tubers' lineup.

Sears' accident happened at Catekill, N. Y., on Friday night. He ruptured a blood-vessel, and telegraphed to Manager Getzinger Saturday that he was unable to play. Charlie O'Donnell was present, but he had just come from a sick bed, and was in no condition to play.

To say that McKeeseport did not miss Sears' foul shooting is putting it mildly, for it is a question whether he would have thrown as good as Fogarty.
In the first half Joe killed nine out of ten chances, and thirteen out of eighteen during the entire game. In field shooting Joe did not shine so bright. He landed one in the first half when De Neri was attacked by stage flight.

In Brooks, Fogarty more than met his match, the Eastern League playing all around the Johnstown captain.
Just what has often been said about the Central League, this style of play is much rougher than the Eastern League. Whenever one of the inter-league teams is put in the line, it is charged by two McKeeseport players
"It is style of play though, did not win the game and it is not mentioned to detract credit from McKeeseport's victory."

It played the fine points of the game to perfection. Its passing was sharp and snappy and its shooting remarkable.

The De Neri players at the start of the game seemed to be attacked with stage fright, for they did little passing and fumbled consistently. Their shooting was also as poor as a minor league team. Gus Krueger, who is considered one of the best guards in the Eastern League, had his hands full with Bogelio, the latter scoring six points four of which were of the sensational order. Twenty-five hundred fans were in the hall when referee Mallon tossed up the ball. Getzinger, as was expected, got the jump on Wilson, but Brooks was caught holding and Fogarty got the first point of the game on a free throw.

Heavily excited matters a moment later, and went ahead on another shot the only lead De Neri had during the entire game. Fogarty got his second try at the basket and again scored the score at 2. Joe sent a long one that hit the backboard, and following the throw caught the ball on the rebound, landing the first field goal of the game. This put the Tubers in the lead, and they were never headed afterward. Bogelio got three in succession, sending De Neri up in the air.

About the middle of the period, Gowdy dribbled cleverly through the entire McKeeseport team for De Neri only field goal during the period. Mc-Keeseport piled up the score to the remainder of the period, on shots by Getzinger and Swenson, the half finally ending with the score of 23 to 9.
Getzinger had a goal thrown out, having put his foot on the cage when he sent the ball spinning through the net. He tallied his other shot the same way, but referee Mallon mis-judged the play.

The second half was vastly different. There were no chances in either team's lineup, at the start, but after five minutes' play, Lukens replaced Reilly, the latter being bumped pretty hard by the McKeeseport guards. De Neri's play improved considerably, and showed some of the form that landed them winner's of the Eastern League pennant. After Bogelio had dropped two in from center, De Neri started to crawl up, with the addition of four shots, set the roots going. Gowdy sent the ball spinning on a one-hand shot, and Brooks went through McKeeseport for De Neri's third goal of the period. De Neri was now only eight points behind, but Bogelio made his sixth goal, which gave the Central League a lead that was too much to overcome with only three minutes to go.

McKeeseport—33. De Neri—22.
Bogelio ..... Forward
Fogarty ..... Gowdy
Getzinger ..... Wilson
Swenson ..... Center
Morris ..... Brooks
Substitutions—Lukens 13 for Reilly (23).
Field goals—Bogelio 6, Getzinger 2.

Display and Sale of Art Needlework

The First Wednesday, Thursday,
Friday and Second Saturday in April.

Prepared especially for all lovers of the art, yet every one is welcome to enjoy the display. The entire dry goods section will be given over Wednesday and Thursday to the exhibit. Friday and Saturday it will take the center of the section.

All four days an unlimited opportunity is afforded you to study, absorb, compare the beauty of lines and fabof finished creations confirm the interest there is in the work.

Whether you come to merely see or seek inspiration, certain it is that a more thorough knowledge is to be gain-well known needlework artists in this city will surely increase your pleasure in the work selected for yourself.

We have hopes that every reader will be impress-
